Training Workshop on Mixed Methods Design and Phenomenology: From Thesis to Publication

May 17-19*, 2017

Cagayan de Oro City, Philippines

actual training dates are 18-19 only. May 17 is included as Arrival of Participants*

Objectives:

- Provide an overview of the foundations and applications of mixed methods research (MMR) through the introduction of the major types of MMR and discussion of rationales and steps for conducting a mixed methods study;
- Understand the mixed methods approach, learn how to use the mixed method tools for research, and apply through work on their own research projects the best practices for writing up a mixed methods study;
- Introduce Phenomenology as powerful research design in capturing the lived experiences of individuals, familiarize the jargon of Phenomenology, get the feel on how to conduct research anchored on phenomenology and redirect understanding on the dynamics of qualitative research focusing on phenomenology;
- Encourage researchers to paradigm shift from Germanic to IMRAD form on writing a thesis for international publication; and produce at least one prototype research sample on phenomenology.

Requirements:

- Participants should bring a laptop for working on their group exercises and presentations.
- Soft copy of thesis/dissertation.
